This year's CILIPS Annual Conference will feature a whole day's programme dedicated to the school library sector, which will run alongside the main conference. The school libraries strand will include presentations covering the major issues in Scottish education, such as the implementation of A Curriculum for Excellence and the roll-out of Glow.

The day will begin with a whole conference keynote address by Jonathan Mitchener, BT futurologist and research scientist, who will discuss technological advances that could impact on library service delivery. A representative from the Scottish Government will then discuss A Curriculum for Excellence.

The mid-morning section will look at Glow, the national schools intranet, and the role of school libraries in its development. This session will be presented by Marie Dougan, Glow Programme Director, and Elspeth Scott, librarian and Glow mentor with Dundee City Council.

After lunch, Cleo Jones of Edinburgh City Council will present examples of A Curriculum for Excellence in practice, including case studies from a number of practising school librarians.

The programme will conclude with a review of the government's wider Skills for Scotland agenda.

Delegates may choose to attend the entire school strand or mix and match with the main conference programme and the additional career development themed strand.

Buses will depart the hotel at 5.15pm.
